

d) well as we all know men are expected to do the paid work and women the unpaid work.

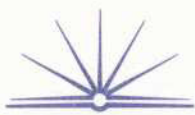

Men are supposed to go out and get a job to be the ~~breadwinner~~, one who provides the money, while women stay at home looking after the house assuring that when he gets home he has to find the house clean and his meal prepared.

But in now days it's now a shared job men and women can both go to work and earn money without one missing out on having a job. women feel that they should be given the chance to work and earn some money but men don't like that they feel like they are the main of the house so they should provide the money we should stay at home and do what ~~women~~ mostly do is stay at home.

b). work places that have cultural beliefs help people feel comfortable were they work they don't feel like they have to be someone else or act like there from some other country.

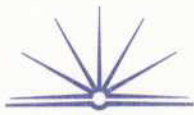

There are families who are from different cultures that open a business with there cultural pictures posters or there gods or Art things that are from there country they feel like they shouldn't be ashamed of there culture so they show it off. Also it helps to keep the family together and make people feel like they can do it to they shouldn't be ashamed of were there from or what there beliefs are just go a head and feel comfortable get a job were they accept your culture and who you are.

c) there are some jobs where people work where they feel like their being harassed, whether sexually or because were there from.

-There now exists a policy where if a co-worker does any of those things mentioned about they can be sued taken to court and probably being fired from where they work. That makes it harder for the person to find another job.

There are some jobs where women feel uncomfortable to go to work some-times because no matter what they were they get harassed by men and females it makes it harder for the person to work having to put up with all that nonsense. So there's an anti-discrimination policy where as if any co-worker breaks the rule at work with harassing any of the workers they'll probably get fired straight away.
