

The two texts that I have studied are these:

Aldous Huxley, Brave New World and,

Ridley Scott, Blade Runner - Director's Cut.

In comparison Brave New World and Blade Runner are an expression of the not so far away future. Between humanity and the natural world we should let mother nature take her own course and preside with its own givings and misgivings alone.