

Question 9 (10 marks)

How useful would Sources E and F be for a historian studying the different goals of Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Wilson in creating the Treaty of Versailles?

10

In your answer, consider the perspectives provided by the TWO sources and the reliability of each one.

The reliability of source E & F isn't debatable. Source E is by a US delegation & source F is by Lloyd George himself, both are first-hand accounts. The different goals by the government over the treaty of Versailles is because there both had different goals to why they should enter the war. The individuals involved made sacrifices and wouldn't want their losses to be forgotten. "The attitude of the different government remains unchanged" is in source E, the unwillingness to change and the different views and goals from the start of the war ~~was~~ to the end of the war remain unchanged. What we know that each government had made different promises to their people, this ~~is~~ collides with source E first-hand account.
