

(c) By creating supportive networks and organisations we can enhance and develop personal skills that will enable young people to achieve and attain a better health.

This can happen at all levels, including National, State, local and personal.

An example of a National supportive network that is currently in place is the "Kids Help Line" which staffs a team of counsellors, available 24 hours, seven days to assist or listen to any problems, young people may need to discuss. This is a free call which is very good as it doesn't create inequalities between people of different socio-economic status.

eg. a child living on the streets.

An example of a supportive network at ~~state level~~ local level is a learn to drive school organised by the PCYC for ~~state~~ teenagers to learn all about road safety and responsibility in an enjoyable environment.

This may help in reducing risk taking behaviours when first obtaining their licence.
