

The effects of Technology on access to socially valued resources is that technology may be able to to show everyone what good resources they really are for example on the Television they may be able to show how good this resource is and how it may be able to help ~~what~~ you with whatever you are making. The discrimination that may occur could be ~~what~~ that the resource that they are showing could only be used for men or vice versa where in fact the other sex may be able to use it even though it is only showing that a male or female may be able to use it it is not true for example if it is something electrical more than likely it will be only for men where in fact a women may also be able to use it. Another example could be if it has anything to do with food it will be more than likely only shown at females because everyone believes that only women are able to work in the kitchen and it is only for women.

That is the discrimination because that is not true anyone is allowed to do whatever they want.
