Question 11 (5 marks)

'The churches should act together in all matters except those in which deep differences of conviction compel them to act separately.'

Conference on Faith and Order, 1952

Using the above statement and your own knowledge, describe the impact of Christian ecumenical movements in Australia.

Churches in Australia should all work and act together in order to bring people close together and in making them understand the word of God unlike isolating themselves and having different views on how to act and behave as being a Christian. Christians moving around thinking that they will get a different view on God but all over the country Christians are all suppose to be praying the same God and making sure that they all follow the guidelines that have been given to them. Christians in Australia mostly move around thinking that by changing churches sometimes help. But actually churches are all the same because they pray the same God.
