'The churches should act together in all matters except those in which deep differences of conviction compel them to act separately.'

Conference on Faith and Order, 1952

Using the above statement and your own knowledge, describe the impact of Christian ecumenical movements in Australia.

The impact of Christian ecumenical movements in Australia include bringing together all the churches and religious leaders to work together and encourage their communities to also work together to solve matters such as environmental issues. By doing so people in the community have a chance to not only help their church and the environment, but to also learn about and work together with other religious communities.
