

The understanding of peace through Islam and Christianity can be evident in Islam's texts (Qur'an and Haddith) and Christianity's (The Holy Bible).

Christian bible teachings promote within oneself and one another.

"turn the other cheek". This popular teaching promotes that if one chooses to fight you, turn your cheek and let him hit again. Which signifies ~~the~~ a peaceful gesture on not to ~~q~~ fight back. Other teachings include "love thy enemies", Another "If you come to the kingdom to offer a gift before God, and you are not right with someone, then leave your gift and be right with this person, then come back to offer your gift".

which means that if you are not right with someone at heart, then the problem should be solved before offering a gift to the kingdom of God.

which is another example on how peace is portrayed in the Bible.

~~The~~ Islam's ^{scripted} texts Quran and Haddith are often misinterpreted by non-muslims. Yet clearly it offers peace and harmony towards oneself and others in the surrounding world.

"do not fight in the land" Sunnat 59:10-Islam is primarily also translated to mean ~~be~~ 'submission' or 'peace'.

Both Christianity and Islam provide to be on peace promoting religions to its adherents
