

Q1

② All of these men, whom you see to be present, in this case think that an injustice, made worse by an unheard of crime ought to be defended, but they do not dare to defend it themselves on account of the troubles of the times. And so it happens that they are present moreover, because they are carrying out their duty, but they are silent

Am I so much more dutiful than the rest? I am not so desirous of every that praise, that I should wish to snatch it away from others.
